THE AWNING BULLETIN

SUMMER 2010

In need of a cost-effective design alternative, Paul Davis, architect for the Eastern Shore Christian Center, contacted Artcraft Awnings to help make his vision of an “abstract wave” for the Center a reality. Tony Legear, Eastern Shore Christian Center’s Senior Pastor, explained “the design [of the awnings] was very much a reflection of our young congregation and our feel about church.” Artcraft Awnings was able to use canvas awnings in

We simply could not be happier or more poised to share our experience with those who may consider the magic of Artcraft Awnings!” explains Legear. As detailed by the testimonial of Eastern Shore Christian Center’s Senior Pastor, Tony Legear, Artcraft Awnings is able to provide a customized finishing touch to any location by working with our customers individual design goals and budgets.

Completed in April, our customers at Eastern Shore Christian Center have been beyond pleased with the final product offered by Artcraft Awnings. “We have been immeasurably satisfied with our awnings. In fact, they have made our building what it is: colorful, a little zany, modern and intriguing. The awnings have made our metal, square building anything but square!” says Legear.

In place, the awnings not only provide a dramatic effect, but they also offer shade reducing the heat and providing for a covering along the building from the elements.

Besides providing the “waving” canopy awning for the center, Artcraft Awnings also supplied the panels used in the pictured tower at the front entrance of the Center. Satisfied with the final product, Davis stated: “I found that the panels didn’t have a long lead time. I have had project that used canopies made of steel or glass and the lead time for installation is considerably longer. Closing out a project and allowing the owner to move in and use the facility is certainly an advantage to using Artcraft Awnings.”

With endless design capabilities, Artcraft Awnings is able to supply innovative uses for our products. “[Artcraft] understood our concept and treated us like we were the only customers in the world. They were professional, neat and took time often to explain various dimensions of the process to us.
